Colin McClelland
Bowers – 321
12/5/2023
Project Part 4

For my recipe collection app, I have begun to implement the interface of the app in addition to the first piece of its functionality. I have also populated some of the tables, but I do still need to populate a handful of them.

Here is a rough sketch version of the home page of my app. Currently users can scroll through a list of recipes and click on one to get more details. I plan on adding more details about each recipe to this screen as I finish populating the rest of the tables.

When users click on a recipe, they are brought to a page that has more details on that specific recipe – for now it is just a brief description. This is where information like rating, time, price, cuisine, etc will go along with directions.